How to Evaluate Your Fence Contractor

A homeowner's checklist from Abrams Fence Company · Kansas City

---

1. Verify Licensing & Insurance

- Ask for proof of general liability insurance and workers' comp.
- Confirm they're licensed to work in your city/county.
- If they can't produce either, walk away.

2. Ask About Their Post Method

- Do they dig holes with an auger or use a no-dig system?
- Auger holes often damage sprinkler lines, tree roots, and underground utilities.
- Ask what post material they use — treated wood rots in 10–15 years. Steel lasts 50+.
- Will they mark utilities and sprinkler lines before starting?

3. Check Their Yard Cleanup Policy

- Many crews leave dirt piles, concrete splatter, and torn-up turf behind.
- Ask: 'Will my yard look the same — or better — when you leave?'
- Get it in writing if they promise a clean job site.

4. Compare What's Included

- Some quotes exclude gates, demo/haul-off, or permit fees — then add them later.
- Ask for a detailed, line-item breakdown before signing.
- A low headline price often hides expensive change orders.

5. Look at Real Reviews & Photos

- Check Google reviews — look for patterns, not just the star rating.
- Ask for photos of completed jobs in your area.
- If they can't show recent, local work — that's a red flag.

6. Ask About Warranties

- What does the warranty cover — labor, materials, or both?
- How long does it last? Who honors it if the company closes?
- Material warranties from the manufacturer are separate from the installer's workmanship warranty.

7. Understand the Timeline

- When can they start? How long will it take?
- A professional crew should complete most residential fences in 1–2 days.
- Beware of vague timelines or contractors who won't commit to a start date.
